THE HISTORY OF POLICEMAN FLYNN

HE QUELLS A RIOT.

"Flynn," said the captain to the policeman of that name, "I'm going to give you the 'cripple beat' and see what you can do with it."

Policeman Flynn nodded gravely. He knew the 'cripple beat' by reputation, and he realized that to be assigned to it was a compliment to his powers. It lay in a district in which there were two rival factions of rowdies, who had nothing in common except an inborn hatred for the police, and it derived its name from the fact that more policemen had been temporarily crippled on it than on any other one beat in the city. The rowdies clashed at frequent intervals, and in the general fight that invariably ensued, windows were smashed and the lives of all in the immediate vicinity were put in jeopardy by the flying missiles. Arrests were frequent, and the patrol wagon had made so many trips to that neighborhood that the horses just naturally turned in that direction when they left the barn. If a single policeman endeavored to interfere when a battle was in progress, he went to the hospital in an ambulance; if a squad arrived on the scene, the warring factions scattered, and the fact that a few participants might be gathered in had no lasting effect on existing conditions.

"I'm to have a thrill on the 'cripple beat,'" said Policeman Flynn somewhat dejectedly when he made his daily report to his wife.

"I'll lay in a supply of 14 arbutus and 14 plasters this very day," was her far from consoling reply. "Bad luck to him, why do they put a little felly like you to do a big man's work?"

"For because," answered Policeman Flynn, with some pride, "plack an' raysoorce is not decided by a fair rule or a pair of scales. The 'cap'tin' says to me, 'I've thrived the big min an' they're not been ailed to the job, an' 'tis necessary for to take the star-arch out of them rowdies felly some way.' So 'tis for me to take the star-arch out of them, but I wish he'd tol' me how to do it."

"There's only wan way I know," said Mrs. Flynn.

"'Tis astonishin' to me ye haven't ita in them," returned Policeman Flynn, sarcastically.

"Give me yer collar," commanded Mrs. Flynn, by way of reply.

The policeman looked surprised, but he took off his nicely starched collar and handed it to her. She promptly dipped it in a basin of water and then held it up for his inspection.

"'Tis done," she announced.

Policeman Flynn scratched his head and departed in a thoughtful mood. "She has a great head on her, fr sure," he soliloquized. "If I liver r-run short iv ca-ash I'll not let out to a com-ity iv wa-ays an' means."

The first few days passed uneventfully on his new beat. The clash that had resulted in temporarily incapacitating his predecessor for work had been followed by the arrest of some of the rowdies, and the others were disposed to be quiet. Policeman Flynn put in the time making a study of the situation. He knew that they were watching him, and, like a good general, he desired to familiarize himself thoroughly with the locality in which his battle or battles were to be fought. It was perhaps a week after he had begun patrolling the beat that the first conflict came, and he announced the result when he reached home by the simple statement, "'Tis done."

"What's done?" asked Mrs. Flynn.

"Me first job," replied Policeman Flynn.

"Ye see, 'twas this wa-y," he went on. "Th' la-ads have been a-aidin' me up an' waitin'. They're no fightin' whin a new policeman shows up till they have a thrill at him, an' they tuk a chance at me this day. Oh! 'twas a big felly that star-arched it all be ta-akin' hard to me. 'Dye think ye'll r-run this beat?' he says. 'I'll thriv,' says I. 'Ye have yer wor-rik out of fr ye,' he says. 'Ye little bit iv a saved-off match.' 'If ye touch th' match,' I says to him, 'ye'll find ye have hold iv the sulphur ind.' 'Shall I ha-and him wan?' he says to th' others. 'Sure,' says they to him, but 'twas too late. While we was ta-akin' I'd wor-ried him r-round till I had his ha-ack to th' horse-trough in front iv th' ray-loon where they'd a-aided me."

"An' what did ye do thit?" asked Mrs. Flynn.

"With wan push," answered Policeman Flynn, "I tuk th' star-arch out of him."

"They'll murder ye fr that," said Mrs. Flynn. "Bad luck to them all, I wish ye'd never been put on th' beat."

However, by keeping his eyes open Flynn was able to guard against any sudden attack, and they showed no disposition to go at him openly.

"But you'd better watch out for them when the two gangs have their next scrimmage," cautioned the sergeant. "If they can get a policeman in it they'll quit fighting each other to do him up. Just remember to call the wagon the first thing."

"If I have time," answered Policeman Flynn, carelessly. "'Tis not so sport as I've been a-aidin' th' la-ads in th' ha-and an' makin' friends iv th' la-ads in th' jailhouse."

"What do you intend to do?" asked the sergeant.

"Lave that to me," replied Policeman Flynn.

The real conflict came two days later, and it was not Policeman Flynn who sent in the call for the patrol wagon. He was too busy. Something had happened to rouse one of the factions to action, and it started out in search of the other, while Policeman Flynn hastily made preparations to a side street that the mob would have to pass, but where he was concealed from view as it approached. Others had leisure to call the wagon, however, and it came on the run.

Policeman Flynn was found standing like a conquering hero, leaning on the big nozzle to a lead of horse that he had borrowed from his friends in the engine house on the corner, but otherwise the street was almost deserted.

"What's the trouble?" asked the driver, as he pulled his horses up.

"What strange ideas ye get!" returned Policeman Flynn. "I've had no trouble at all. There was a few la-ads come down th' street a bit ago lakkin' fr trouble, but they're gone away."

"Where are they?" was the next question.

"I dunno fr sure," answered Policeman Flynn, "but 'tis me impression they're been hung out on th' line fr to d'ry so's they can be sta-arched up agin'."

NAPOLEON'S MANY ESCAPES

Reckless of Danger, the Great Soldier Was Wounded Many Times.

In reply to the question in what engagements he considered himself to have been in the greatest danger of losing his life Napoleon once said, "In the commencement of my campaign."

Indeed, if further proof were demanded, to show that he did not spare himself at Toulon it is only necessary to add that during the ten weeks of his siege Napoleon, in addition to a lay-out wound in his thigh, had three horses shot under him, while at the siege of Acre during the expedition to Egypt he lost no fewer than four in the same manner.

During the last days of his life, when captivity, disappointment and sickness had well nigh completed their work, it is said that the agony of his fatal disease drew from him on many occasions the pitiful cry of, "Why, did the cannon balls spare me?"

During his long military career Napoleon fought 69 battles, while Caesar fought but 50. In the early part of his career he was utterly reckless of danger while on the battlefield, and this spirit of fearlessness contributed largely to the love and esteem in which he was held by his armies. There was a curious belief among the English in Napoleon's time that he had never been wounded, and indeed the report was current that he carefully hid not in a cowardly manner refrained from exposing himself. Nothing could be more contrary to the truth, for he was in reality several times severely wounded, but as he wished to impress upon his troops the belief that good fortune never deserted him and that, like Achilles, he was well nigh invulnerable, he always made a secret of his many dangers. He therefore endeavored once for all upon the part of his immediate staff the most absolute silence regarding all circumstances of this nature, for it is almost impossible to calculate the confusion and disorder which would have resulted from the slightest report or the smallest doubt relative to his existence. Upon the single thread of this man's life depended not only the fate and government of a great empire, but the whole policy and destiny of Europe as well.

AN ASTOUNDING ROCKET.

Eyewitness Graphically Describes the Shaft of Fire from Vesuvius.

Entering Naples from Rome, I had intended to keep my eyes open for everything, says a writer in the Independent, but after a tremendous day of work, tired nature gained her way and I went sound to sleep.

I was suddenly awakened by a most tremendous clap of what I took to be thunder, and opened my eyes full on a scene which few people have been privileged to witness.

On a background of piled up heaps of yellow gray smoke, seeming great puffs from a giant fire, rose a perfect, straight column of burning material, without a flaw or deviation, to what seemed thousands of feet above, spreading at the top and throwing out myriads of incandescent globes in all directions; no simile can be so perfect as that of a Cyclopean rocket.

This unique rocket issued from a burning cauldron in which red hot glowing material boiled up and over, flowing down the side of the mountain so quickly that I imagined I could see it advance as I watched.

Plain Spoken Man.

One of the candidates for governor, in speaking to friends of his trip to the "sticks" of north Georgia, declared that some of the good folk in that part of the state evidently were no more familiar with the dictionary than the old woman who said it was good reading, but that she didn't like the story.

"While in the middle of a speech," said the candidate, "when everything was going smoothly and I thought the audience held under the spell of my eloquence, I spoke of the gubernatorial race as though it were already won. When I mentioned the word 'gubernatorial' an old mountaineer shifted to his feet in the rear of the building, and after waiting until I finished the sentence, declared in his piercing voice:

"If you want to poll 't' rote of north Georgia, Mr. Speaker, use plain language; we call 'em plain gubers up here."—Atlanta Constitution.

Escape on Bear Barrels.

Six Frenchmen who were discovered a short time ago on a remote part of the island of New Britain in the South seas say that they escaped from the penal settlement of Noumea on a raft constructed of staves of bear barrels and sailed 2,000 miles on it.

The Vain Quest.

I sought for a woman of thirty—in vain. It is plain to me. That all women under fifty are not over twenty-three!—Cleveland Leader.

ON THE GRIDIRON

Baseball Fatalities Exceed the Gridiron

More People Killed on the Diamond Than by Football—Some Statistics.

The baseball season of 1906 is now officially closed, and a review, which necessarily, because of the games spread over the country, is probably incomplete, shows that it claimed 12 victims. Baseball contributed to the deaths of perhaps a dozen more, who died from heart disease, fell off roofs, were run over by cars while hastening to a game, or were killed in fights growing out of games.

Three players were killed in Philadelphia, and three more in other parts of the state. Three were killed in New Jersey. The batted ball was deadly, four persons being killed in this way. Pitched balls claimed three victims, which shows the force in a pitcher's arm. Three persons passed away after being struck by bats and one man ruptured a blood vessel by swatting a pitched ball too hard.

The list of players to whom the game was fatal follows:

Joseph Schneider, 25 years old, of Germantown, Pa., dropped dead from Camden, N. J., June 16—Thomas P. Baker was hit by a bat that slipped from a player's hands and died in an hour.

George C. Hackett, of No. 2064 Hartsville street, Philadelphia, was watching a game on May 20 and was killed by a batted ball.

Hurry to see a game cost the life of Eva Bennett, No. 2347 North Marshall street, Philadelphia, July 22. She dropped dead from excitement.

Fear that the Athletics might lose a game brought a stroke of apoplexy that killed James H. Benson, No. 1206 South Twenty-second street, Philadelphia, April 15.

Some of the serious baseball accidents that did not terminate fatally follow:

John Murphy, 45 years old, Philadelphia, skull fractured.

Laverne Bird, eight years old, Philadelphia, skull fractured by batted ball.

Howard Ellis, at Philadelphia, bit on head by batted ball.

John Kenney, 11 years old, Stanhope, N. J., skull fractured by bat.

Ralph A. Garrison, Philadelphia, collided with fellow college player at Princeton and seriously injured.

William Pfeiffer, 14 years, Newark, N. J., skull broken in three places by thrown ball.

Two Eastern Gridiron Leaders.

CAPT. EDDIE GREEN, Pennsylvania.

CAPT. DILLON, Princeton.

exhaustion after scoring a home run at Belmont on July 2.

Frank Wilson, 14 years, No. 212 Shoemaker street, Philadelphia, struck and killed by bat slipping on May 16.

George T. Snyder, policeman, old ball player, stricken with heart disease as he made two-base hit.

William Garrison, No. 715 Spruce street, Philadelphia, ruptured a blood vessel while striking at ball in Camden, N. J., on April 15, and died.

The above statistics were compiled by a Philadelphia admirer of football who has maintained that the agitation against the brutality of the gridiron game was not altogether sincere and not based on facts. He maintained that baseball claimed a greater list of victims.

This man laboriously collected all the statistics of injuries and fatalities on the ball field in his section of the country. A complete list would doubtless assume tremendous proportions.

While the above list may show that the agitation based on the brutality of football might equally as well take baseball for its object, it does not in any wise disprove the oft-repeated statement that there was need of reform in football.

However, it is in the ethics, rather than in the operation, of the great college pastime that reform is most needed.

Professional methods have been too rapidly encroaching upon amateur grounds. The elimination of the professional spirit is the great need of football. The new rules will go a long way toward doing this.

they secured the ball on forward passes. The work of the regulars for the rest of this week will be light, as most of the men will be kept in good condition for the Cornell game.

Braved Danger from Sharks.

In Pacific waters commander Gamber met the great Bishop Selwa of New Zealand. His missionary yacht, the Southern Cross, touched a coral reef when entering the harbor of Port of France, New Caledonia. It became necessary to examine her bottom, and the sharks were so numerous and so daring that nobody would venture into the water. "So the bishop, who held that if a man showed a bold front to a shark he would sheer off, went overboard himself with a long, sharp knife in his month for defense, and diving under his vessel, ascertained the damage. He then came on board our ship, and we arranged to carry the yacht sufficiently to enable him to sail on some copper sheets, which he did himself, again spending a long time in the water. For some curious reason not a single shark bore in sight all the time."

Old Tiger Player Again in the Team.

S. R. Miller, a Former Princeton Full Back, Reports for Football Practice.

A pleasant surprise greeted the students of Princeton university when at the daily football practice S. R. Miller, two years ago one of the best full backs in mole skins, appeared on university field. He was injured two years ago and was not in the game last year.

The advent of Miller will occasion a big shift in the makeup of the Tiger eleven. Whether Miller will go into full back position, where he played a star game two years ago, and McCormick will be sent to half back again, or whether the coaches will put him on an end is the subject of comment among the students.

Miller confined his work to kicking the ball about the field yesterday and averaged good distances on punts. The scrub scored on the variety in the scrimmage, making big gains. Twice

The Catarrh Cure. One of the many "cures" favored by fashionable people weary of London, is the "catarrh cure." This simple and enjoyable method of renewing one's strength consists in travelling about Britain in a cart, such as the Gypsies have, and camping out at night wherever a haven can be found.

Lord and Lady Arthur Grosvenor have spent the summer journeying in this fashion through Exmoor, a wild and mountainous country, made famous by the great romance, Lorna Doone.

One night they encamped on the farm of John Ridd, of the novel. The difficulties in hill climbing have been enormous, but the pleasure of the trip has made it worth while.

SAVED BABY LYON'S LIFE.

Awful Sight from That Dreadful Complaint, Infantile Eczema—Mother Praises Cuticura Remedies.

"Our baby had that dreadful complaint, Infantile Eczema, which afflicted him for several months, commencing at the top of his head, and at last covering his whole body. His sufferings were untold and constant misery, in fact, there was nothing we would not have done to have given him relief. We finally procured a full set of the Cuticura Remedies, and in about three or four days he began to show a brighter spirit and really laughed, for the first time in a year. In about ninety days he was fully recovered. Praise for the Cuticura Remedies has always been our greatest pleasure, and there is nothing too good that we could say in their favor, for they really saved our baby's life, for he was the most awful sight that I ever beheld, prior to the treatment of the Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. Marabelle Lyon, 1826 Appleton Ave., Parsons, Kan., July 15, 1903."

DRIVEN TO GET RELIGION.

Reason for Close-Fisted Man's Attendance at Church.

A New Hampshire man tells of a "rightist" man of affairs in a town of that state, who until recently had never been observed to take an interest in church matters. Suddenly, however, he became a regular attendant at Divine service, greatly to the astonishment of his fellow townsmen.

"What do you think of the case of old Ketchum?" said one of the business men of the place to a friend. "Is it true that he has got religion?"

"Well, hardly," replied the other, with the air of one who knows. "The fact is, it's entirely a matter of business with him. I am in a position to know that about a year ago he loaned the pastor $20, which the latter was unable to pay. So there remained nothing for Ketchum but to take it out in pew rent."—The Sunday Magazine.

as with joyous hearts and smiling faces they romp and play—when in health—and how conducive to health the games in which they indulge, the outdoor life they enjoy, the cleanly, regular habits they should be taught to form and the wholesome diet of which they should partake. How tenderly their health should be preserved, not by constant medication, but by careful avoidance of every medicine of an injurious or objectionable nature, and if at any time a remedial agent is required, to assist nature, only those of known excellence should be used; remedies which are pure and wholesome and truly beneficial in effect, like the pleasant laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. Syrup of Figs has come into general favor in many millions of well informed families, whose estimate of its quality and excellence is based upon personal knowledge and use.

Syrup of Figs has also met with the approval of physicians generally, because they know it is wholesome, simple and gentle in its action. We inform all reputable physicians as to the medicinal principles of Syrup of Figs, obtained by an original method, from certain plants known to them to act most beneficially and presented in an agreeable syrup in which the wholesome Californian blue figs are used to promote the pleasant taste; therefore it is not a secret remedy and hence we are free to refer to all well informed physicians, who do not approve of patent medicines and never favor indiscriminate self-medication.

Please to remember and teach your children also that the genuine Syrup of Figs always has the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package and that it is for sale in bottles of one size only. If any dealer offers any other than the regular Fifty cent size, or having printed thereon the name of any other company, do not accept it. If you fail to get the genuine you will not get its beneficial effects. Every family should always have a bottle on hand, as it is equally beneficial for the parents and the children, whenever a laxative remedy is required.

SATURDAY EVENING.
There are two severe criticisms associated with the Republican rally; first, the audience was ridiculously small. In a Republican form of government people ought to get out and hear the speakers of all parties and decide for themselves. However, those who remained at home probably knew their business. The Opera House was like a refrigerator; people who were present subjected themselves to the greatest exposure. Some unable to endure the cold left after the first speaker finished. Rhinelander people may forget but how do such conditions make strangers feel towards the town. A cold treatment at the best.

ELECTION IN NEW YORK.
Early in the campaign, strong indications pointed to the election of William Randolph Hearst as governor of New York State. He seemed to be doing all the talking and Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate, kept quiet. Betting was five to two in favor of Hearst. Indications now are strong in favor of Mr. Hughes' election. A careful canvass of New York City gives Hearst a slight majority in several of the strong democratic districts. Past records show that Hearst will have to go out of New York and Brooklyn with over a hundred thousand majority to stand a ghost of a show for election.

The farming districts of New York have always given a large majority for the Republican ticket and it is to be greatly doubted that the sensationalism of Hearst will make any material change in their vote. Hearst is always condemning the corporations; the difference between the true reformer and Hearst is, the true reformer condemns the corporations, when they take undue advantage of the people in the interests of themselves. Hearst condemns corporations to build up political capital for himself. He forgets that he himself is a capitalist and takes every advantage of the masses. Look to New York's election for the good of all classes. We sincerely hope Charles E. Hughes will be the next governor of that state. With Hearst's election the evil of anarchism may not stop in New York.

Why a citizen of Oneida County should vote a Republican ticket from top to bottom November 6th: every man on the Republican State ticket has been for the reform movements, which today place Wisconsin in the front ranks; more, their past experiences in most cases, especially fit them for the positions for which they have been nominated.

Our Congressman is a man who has always been with the people on every public question. Roosevelt needs such men at Washington to support him in his reform measures. It takes more than a Republican majority at Washington to pass the reform laws, it takes a majority of honest, upright men in sympathy with the movement. We know Morse is.

Mr. Everett, our candidate for Assembly, has served one term in the State Legislature, stands on the strong State platform made at Madison and asks for re-election.

Our county ticket is made up of men whom we know personally and the voters at the primaries have decided they are the choice of the party for their respective offices.

County Clerk Carr is a man who has served all his life in the line of work for which his office calls. Three terms he has been elected over abidingly and now stands without opposition for re-election to his office. Vote for him to let him know your attitude in the matter.

N. T. Baldwin has been County Treasurer one term, has had no criticisms for poor work but on the contrary has received praise for his faithfulness to duty. Surely he is entitled to a second term.

John D. Cole, candidate for Sheriff, had a hard fight in the primaries, won out fairly and now asks election at the hands of the people. Why should not a good citizen, who has always been an active worker in his party, receive its full support?

E. C. Sturdevant has held his present office, Clerk of Court, for years and if merit for service is the right policy he will be for many years to come. While he has no opposition, vote for him to keep in the right habit. He is hustling just as hard for the ticket as though he had a strong opponent to defeat.

S. S. Miller, District Attorney, is a candidate for his fourth consecutive term without opposition.

Julius Follstad won the prize in a three cornered fight at the primaries and is entitled to every Republican vote Nov. 6th. Perhaps so but a contest leaves a few stings, but it is all the more reason why he should have every Republican vote.

D. H. Vaughan, who has served the county well as Surveyor many years need to be little concerned about his election.

Party principles and the sincerity with which they are carried out should decide for what party a man casts his vote in State politics, and surely the Republican party of Wisconsin can raise its head with pride for what it has done of late. It is no time now to stop the good work. Every vote cast strengthens or weakens this great cause. If we care about the success of the cause and wish to strengthen it two years from now, let us put forward an unbroken rank as encouragement for the next battle. Nothing should cause us to desert our party or a single candidate in it except his faithlessness to past public duty, or his lack of respectability as a man and a citizen. If such are the tests, every Republican on the State and county tickets will receive a good majority in Oneida County November 6th.

LETTER TOMR. CHAS. FREDRICKSON, Rhinelander, Wis.

Dear Sir: Would you rather have your customers speak of your shoes as wearing well, as not running down at the heel, as turning water and taking a shine; or wag their heads and say nothing?

We'd rather have ours, at long intervals, say: "We want some more paint, and want Devos." We know it isn't human nature to paint very often; we don't expect them to come very often; don't want 'em to. All we want is to paint what they have to paint, whenever they paint it; the longer the time, the surer they are to come back. There's business enough in the world; there's houses enough to paint; let 'em take their time.

If we were a shoemaker, we'd make shoes to last half a lifetime, and shoe the whole town. Yours truly,

F. W. Devos & Co. New York and Chicago

INQUIRY INTO EXCLUSION OF CHILDREN FROM SCHOOL

METCALF SENT TO FRISCO

Complaint of Mikado's Ambassador
Leads President to Send Cabinet
Officer to Investigate Conditions on the Coast.

Washington. — President Roosevelt
Friday night directed Victor H. Metcalf, secretary of the department of commerce and labor, to proceed to San Francisco and make a thorough and complete inquiry into the situation affecting the exclusion of Japanese children from the schools provided for white children, and the determination to place Japanese pupils
in separate schools.

The president is anxious to obtain at first hand from a cabinet officer who is acquainted with local conditions in San Francisco full information affecting every phase of the subject, to the end that whatever action is taken by this government may be after an accurate understanding of the situation. The president feels that every effort within the power of the administration should be exerted to see that all the treaty rights claimed by the Japanese for its people residing in the United States should be respected and protected.

The determination to send Secretary Metcalf to San Francisco was one of the results of the request made by Viscount Aoki, the Japanese ambassador, who at a conference with Secretary Root Thursday asked, in behalf of his government, that the Japanese students in California be accorded their full rights under the treaty of 1894, including that of the children to attend the public schools of San Francisco. "This request was the subject of very long and earnest discussion at the cabinet meeting Friday, when the conclusion was reached that the best thing to do was to send Mr. Metcalf to California.

Administration officials do not hesitate to express privately their views of the present anti-American feeling growing out of the wrongs which the Japanese declare they have suffered and one member of the cabinet said after the meeting that the general opinion of the cabinet was that the situation was exceedingly grave and would require the most delicate treatment to prevent an open rupture.

Investigating Committee Reports.

Book writing professors who devote a large part of their time to authorship and private gain at the expense of university work for which they are paid by the state are scored by the university legislative investigating committee which filed its report with Gov. Davidson. The committee frowns on "double salary" zeal when it interferes with class work. The committee also suggests that regents hold more frequent meetings and take more of a directing hand in the management of the university and not leave so much for the president to do. Regents also are scored in the report for not having knowledge of existing abuses about the institution. The board of regents is the governing body of the institution, declares the report, but the president has assumed the governing power. The members of the board are not paid a salary, and,
as a result, they devote as little time
as possible to the work of overseeing university affairs. The committee recommends that a salary be paid to encourage industry and foresight. No personalities are indulged in. It is said that not one name of a professor appears. The criticism is directed at the department in which the abuse existed, but no person is mentioned.
Only one President Van Hise's name is used. Recently the committee examined a number of students and professors and the testimony was to the effect that all was not harmony in the institution. While the committee made an exhaustive examination as to fraternities, the junior "prom," and social life generally at the institution, it makes no recommendation as to the regulation thereof, save to suggest it is within the province of the regents to use a restraining hand if necessary. The report completely revenerates Prof. G. N. Knapp, whose reluctant charges a year ago of irregularities in the management of the agricultural college and university farm led to his discharge and the subsequent investigation of the university by the legislature. The report says nothing was presented reflecting on the integrity, honesty, and capacity of Prof. Knapp, and says if more fact were employed in his department there should be no difficulty in getting along with Knapp. The agricultural college management is censured for monarchical methods in government. Most of the reforms suggested by the committee are already under way at the university, and due credit is given President Van Hise therefor. The report closes in these words: "It is due the university to say that many of the recommendations which the committee has made in its report already are being inaugurated."

May Leave Wisconsin University.

Charles R. Van Hise, who, it is reported, may resign to become secretary of the Smithsonian institution in Washington, has been president of the Fight on for Fear's Place.

George W. Chinnock, of River Falls, filed petitions as an independent candidate for state senator in the Pierce-St. Croix county district to fill out the unexpired term of Senator James A.
Fear, of Hudson, who resigned when he was nominated as Republican candidate for secretary of state. Chinnock declares the political designation of his candidacy is "Republican by nomination papers." Charles Donohue, of New Richmond, filed papers as a nonpartisan candidate for the same office.

Dane County Grows Richer.

Rich Yield from Corn Test.

Dr. A. M. Moore, professor of agricultural science of the college of agriculture
of Wisconsin university, has succeeded, after much experimenting, in developing or "breeding" a species of Indian corn that yields 150 bushels to the acre. This is more than twice the average of corn in Wisconsin. Last spring Prof. Moore was allotted 22 acres of the university farm for his experiment with his corn. He believes that this new species of corn is adaptable to all of the states in the same latitude as Wisconsin.

Attorney General Explains.

Attorney General Sturdevant explains why, in his opinion, the money received by Wisconsin from the federal government for war claims was turned into the general fund instead of the trust fund. He says the money was not originally borrowed from the trust funds, but was raised on bonds issued by the state. The war refund from the general government was covered into the general fund of the state in accordance with an opinion issued by the governor at the time the money was received.

Enforcing Child Labor Laws.

State Factory Inspector J. E. Vallier is encountering many difficulties in his efforts to enforce the child labor laws.
The trouble is not always with the employer, but with the worker who facilitates on taking up life's burdens before attaining the age prescribed by law. The most elaborate artifices are resorted to in order to evade the strictness of the officials, but the detection of these attempts has become such an exact science that few succeed in violating the law for any length of time.

Johnson acquired title to the option and claims he was engaged in looking over the lands when they were sold to the Copper River Land company. The latter company paid $500,000.

Arrests may be made by the health department if more offenses are reported.

NEWS OF WISCONSIN TAX DEED NOTICE

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST IN THE VARIOUS TOWNS.

ASSERTS LAW IS UNJUST

Attorney Quarles Attacks Inheritance Statute, in Schandelin Case Before Judge Carpenter at Milwaukee.

Milwaukee.—"The whole inheritance tax law is unjust and unworthy of the state of Wisconsin," declared Attorney Charles Quarles in the course of his argument in the Schandelin inheritance tax case before Judge Carpenter. "It is shocking to the sense of justice."

Mr. Quarles took the position in his argument that the estate inheritance tax should be levied at the time of the final settlement of the estate rather than immediately upon the probate of the will. He insisted that for this reason the estate of Daniel Wells should have been subjected to the inheritance tax, notwithstanding that he died before the law became operative.

Mr. Quarles followed Attorney Thomas M. Kearney, who appears for Mrs. Clara S. Heyl, the chief beneficiary under Mr. Schandelin's will. Mr. Kearney explained the position of the estate in the inheritance tax and offering arguments in support of his contention that the value of the estate is less than it was estimated by the appraisers. GOV. DAVIDSON AND SEN. HUDNALL MAKE TELLING SPEECHES.

The governor is in good spirits and voice and is making a telling campaign. Unaccustomed at the opening of the season to public speaking, he has made wonderful improvement and at present is presenting a strong logical speech which is well received.

While at Amherst the governor and party were entertained at a hotel of the Hon. James J. Nelson. A delegation from Stevens Point attended the Amherst meeting and escorted the party here this evening. The party was entertained here at the Curran House.

Tomorrow the governor will speak at Abbotford, Phillips and Ogema. Saturday he will appear at Medford, Park Falls, and Prentice. Sunday morning the party will go to Ashland and the governor will hold open house throughout the day.

It was announced today that Senator Spooner would open his campaign in support of Gov. Davidson in Stevens Point Monday evening.

POINTS TO WIDE REFORMS.

The governor spoke tonight to a large audience in the Opera House and for two hours held their close attention with a logical discussion of the questions that have been settled and crystallized into legislative enactment by the Republican administration during the last six years. He also pointed out the necessity of further reforms in various lines in the interest of the people. A large portion of his address was devoted to those laws that have been enacted for the control of railroad taxation and railroad tariffs.

He stated that before many days he anticipated the establishment by the railroad rate commission of a 2 cent fare in this state, and he assured his hearers that that rate would be maintained so long as the commission can hold its position in the courts.

He devoted considerable attention to Ayward's boast that he would relinquish the race for governor and give $500 to the Republican campaign fund if it could be truthfully shown that the State tax had been eliminated this year or any other year. He stated that the records at Madison show that no State tax has been collected from the people in the last three years; and the governor said he did not expect such a tax would ever again be necessary while the present policy in State government is continued. Moreover, he said, the tax was eliminated in the last year of democratic rule, in 1894, under Peck's administration, although the Republicans had to pay for that folly the following year.

HUDNALL COMPARES PLATFORMS.

The governor is also taking up the life insurance situation with increasing interest and firmness. He contends that steps should be taken to compel the insurance companies to return to the policy holders some $9,000,000 of their money now held in the surplus funds of the big companies of the east. He believes that they should hereafter be compelled to make a division of this alleged surplus after the second premium on every policy, and that they should be required to make an intelligent annual statement of their business. Mutual companies should be compelled to be mutual in fact as well as in name.

The governor was followed by Senator G. B. Hudson of Superior, chairman of the railroad committee. Senator Hudson spoke for nearly an hour, presenting a comparison of the Republican and democratic platforms. He pointed out the many evidences of the democratic attempt to steal Republican thunder by incorporating many of the Republican planks in their platform under a slightly changed form.—Milwaukee Sentinel, Oct. 25.

PART OF SPEECH OF SENATOR LA FOLLETTE AT SUN PRAIRIE.

Oct. 25.—"The campaign in Wisconsin is but a part of a great movement throughout the country, a movement in which Wisconsin has taken the lead.

"There is something bigger at stake than the satisfying of one man's ambition, something bigger than the nomination of a man of any nationality.

"I will always preserve the right whenever and wherever I see one grain of advantage for this movement to work for the nomination of men whom I think and feel can be trusted to carry out this work.

PEOPLE HAVE DECIDED.

"I favored the nomination of Mr. Leinroot because I thought him to be the better equipped to carry on this work; but the people of Wisconsin have decided otherwise. Gov. Davidson was fairly nominated by a majority of those who have been interested in these things, and I bow in acquiescence. I would have preferred the other man, but Gov. Davidson is honest. Gov. Davidson at heart is for these things as I am for them.

"As between Gov. Davidson and what he stands for and the Democratic candidate and what he stands for I say: 'Vote for Gov. Davidson.'"

"This movement cannot go back under Gov. Davidson. I have nothing to take back. I preferred the nomination of Mr. Leinroot because I considered him a bigger leader and a more rugged man, better equipped to fight the battles of the people in this movement. Things may not be as well as they would have been, but the people decided otherwise and I acquiesce. It is not a question of what was best then; it is a question of what is best now that you are to decide.

AYLWARD'S RECORD.

"Unless I am mistaken the Democratic candidate for governor was a delegate in the Democratic convention in 1902, which adopted a platform which opposed the primary election principle and which contained no declaration on the question of railroad taxation then agitating the public mind. He has in the past been associated with that wing of the Democratic party which opposed the things we have enacted into law."

Here Senator LaFollette read the roll call in the legislature on the rate bill at the session of 1903 and on the primary election bill at the same session, showing that twenty-one out of twenty-five democrats in the assembly and senate voted against these bills then.

CAN TRUST DAVIDSON.

"Now I ask you if it is not better to trust the performance of platform pledges to Gov. Davidson and Republican assemblymen when you stop to think of the record of accomplishment the Republican party in this state has made," continued the senator. "Gov. Davidson is as honest as any man in the state. He will not knowingly give one vote to the opposition to the reforms. He will be faithful to you."—Free Press.

In Time of Peace.

In the first months of the Russian-Japan war we had a striking example of the necessity for preparation and the early advantage of those who, so to speak, "have shingled their roofs in dry weather." The virtue of preparations has made history and given to us our greatest men. The individual as well as the nation should be prepared for any emergency. Are you prepared to successfully combat the first cold you take? A cold can be cured much more quickly when treated as soon as it has been contracted and before it has become settled in the system. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is famous for its cures of colds and it should be kept at hand ready for instant use. For sale by
